EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

WADE HAMPTON has begun to "own up." The Solid South surely is crumbling.

The Senate deadlock may be broken this week. That is the subject for pious thanksgiving to-day.

WADE HAMPTON'S confession does not occupy a prominent position in any Democratic newspaper received at this office.

SENATOR MAHONE says frankly that he has made no "bargain" with either party and that he is absolutely free to vote as he pleases.

IT appears to be the opinion of David Davis that all the political virtue in the country is on the fence with him. He does not complain, however, of being crowded.

WASHINGTON is said to be plentifully sprinkled with Senators who go about murmuring, "I want to go home." The country is perfectly willing that they should.

IT is remarked by many thoughtful Democratic editors that no good citizen can read Senator Frye's speech without regret. Certainly not, if the "good citizen" be a Democrat.

OF course, Secretary Windom's refunding plan does not please the Democrats. Who expected it would? They have not been able to approve of any Republican financial measure for more than twenty years.

SENATOR BROWN is working hard for that Democratic Presidential nomination, and will earn it whether he gets it or not. If the decision is left with the Republicans he will get it by an unanimous vote.

Senator Brown has established his claim to be champion wobbler of the Senate. His record, as unfolded by himself, shows that the only reason he has not made a half-dozen profitable "bargains" in as many years, is that he could at no time find the Republicans ready to treat with him.

THE Pennsylvania Independent Republicans who helped elect Senator Mitchell are expecting that he will refuse to follow Senator Cameron if the latter votes with his friend Conkling against Robertson's confirmation. They are confident that Mr. Mitchell will "set up for himself," and thus justify the confidence which was given him at the time of his election.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE long deadlock has not been in vain. Wade Hampton's confession is worth all the time and patience which the weary struggle has cost. He has put the Northern Democrats in a most uncomfortable position, for what he admits is just what they have been most vociferous in denying. He also gives another knock-down blow to General Hancock's famous sentiment about a "full vote, a free ballot and a fair count." It will be a long time before that sentiment will be aired again upon the Democratic ensign.

THERE is good sense as well as good politics in these remarks of the Troy Times: "We do not believe the future of the Republican party is bound up in the New York Custom House. We do not believe that as the dispenser of patronage it constitutes the being and the end of the Republican party. It is a great interest, it is true; but those who make the choice of its head, the Collector, the paramount element of strength in the Republican party do most shamefully dwarf the mission, the principles and underlying inspirations of that party. They forget duty either through greed for office or from an insane desire to become victors in a fight of factions."

The New York Collectorships.

In a lengthy article concerning the attempt of Senator Conkling to defeat the appointment of Senator Robertson to be collector of the port of New York the Tribune says:

Senator Conkling appears to be preparing for himself a most humiliating defeat. His worst enemy could not wish to see him placed in worst position than the one which he seems resolved to take. The State of New York is not unmindful of his abilities, and has no wish to see him humiliated. But it does not forget that the controversy in which he has now engaged arises from the attempt to dictate to the President of the United States. If he forces the country to decide whether it has determined to intrust the Executive power to James A. Garfield or to Roscoe Conkling, there can be no doubt as to the verdict.

While General Grant was President, Senator Conkling wielded a vast power in this State. It was the pleasure of the President to defer greatly to his wishes. It may be that General Grant himself does not know, even to this day, how much his hold upon the public confidence was shaken by the course of the Senator whose counsel he so often accepted. But the power which the Senator then held was voluntarily given to him by the President whom the people had chosen. The trouble began when Mr. Conkling sought to wield the same power under another President, who was not disposed to give it. His persistent and angry demand and the determined refusal of President Hayes are well remembered, and Mr. Conkling probably does not realize how far his own course escaped censure because of the disagreement of President Hayes with the majority of his party on questions of public policy. The Senator did not prevail in the struggle. But the occasion permitted him to claim that he represented the will of a majority of Republicans and by mixing up the question of appointments with other matters, he partly succeeded in disguising the personal usurpation of power which he attempted.

President Garfield stands on a different footing. Beyond question he represents the will and enjoys the confidence of a very large majority of Republicans. It will be found impossible to represent that any divergence of opinion, in respect to public questions, has placed the President in a minority within his party. If it is said that he recognizes, by the appointment of Senator Robertson, the right of a delegate to regard the wishes of his constituents, the answer is that the Republican National Convention decided in that matter against Senator Conkling and in favor of the course taken by Mr. Robertson. Senator Conkling will not venture to put his opposition on that ground, for, in doing so, he would confess that he represented a defeated minority. He has no excuse for his opposition except this, that the selection made by the President is personally displeasing to him. But, if he gives that excuse, he openly asserts his right to dictate to the President as to New York appointments. General Grant himself would not have tolerated such usurpation.

The Republican Senators will think twice before they will support any such attempted usurpation. No doubt many of them would be pleased to be consulted in respect to certain appointments, but they will not claim the right to dictate to the President. It will become very clear to them, before a vote is reached, that every Senator who votes to sustain Mr. Conkling in his course virtually joins with him in an attempt to usurp power which the people have intrusted to the President. The power of the Senate to confirm appointments was not given to that body for the gratification of personal likes or dislikes of Senators. It was given solely to guard against ill-judged or ill-formed selections of unworthy men. The Senate has a right to reject the nomination of an improper or unfit person. But, as between proper and fit men, it has no right whatever to usurp the President's power of choice.

Neither will Republican Senators lend themselves to tear the party to pieces by a fight of factions, because one Senator cannot have his way in every instance. The Republican party is more important than any man in it. To the President it has intrusted the delicate duty of making such selections for office, with due regard for public welfare, as shall do justice to different interests and elements within the party. Thus far the President has discharged that duty with great fairness, and with an evident disire to do no injustice. The Republican party is not going to split up and to get itself beaten, because one Senator refuses to be satisfied unless he can have everything.

THERE seems to be hardly life enough left in the World's Fair project to enable it to give up the ghost decently. To all intents and purposes it is dead already. Its proper epitaph would be: killed by mismanagement. From the start it was the prey of jealousies, rivalries and intrigues, and was heavily loaded with hopeless incompetency. We say this without desiring to reflect upon a number of excellent, intelligent and patriotic citizens who at considerable sacrifice of time and money did their best to float the enterprise. They could not make headway against the ignorance and self-stubbornness of the majority of their associates, and, unfortunately, they must share the blame for the failure of a project which started off with a great flourish of trumpets, and at one time awakened considerable interest among the people of the metropolis and the country at large. It was not their fault that the plan failed, but the public will not stop to discriminate between them and the egotistical blunderers upon the commission. We believe the enterprise might have been made a great credit and benefit to the city and to manufacturing and commercial interests of the Nation, but it lacked a competent organizing brain from the beginning, and the busy quick-witted New Yorkers, who are intolerant of stupidity, speedily perceived its defects, and making up their minds that it was doomed to failure, soon ceased to concern themselves about it. It would not be surprising if Chicago or St Louis should pick up the scheme, and scraping off the barnacles fastened on it, should in a few years launch it with a characteristic Western hurrah.—Tribune.

THE most interesting State campaign of the present year will be that in Ohio, which will, to all appearances, be fought squarely on National issues. The contest will be complicated by factional disagrements in either of the great parties, and the issue will be watched by the whole country as a test of the relative strength of the Republican and Democratic organizations. The Republicans will hold their Convention at Cleveland in June. Governor Foster will unquestionably be renominated by acclamation. Lieutenant-Governor Hickenlooper declines a second nomination, and his place will probably be filled by a strong man from the southern part of the State. The present State Treasurer, Attorney-General and Member of the Board of Public Works, Messrs. Turney, Nash and Paul, are likely to be renominated without opposition. Judge Boynton, the member of the Supreme Bench whose term expires wishes to retire, and there are a number of candidates announced for his place. Prominent among them is General Jones, who recently represented the Delaware District in Congress. In the Democratic party there is no drift of opinion apparent toward a candidate to run against Foster. Some talk is heard of Mayor Means, of Cincinnati, and some of Hugh J. Jewett, who, however, is generally regarded now as a citizen of New York.

MR. ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS, in a letter to the Philadelphia Press, says he is responsible for the declaration that "slavery was the cornerstone of the Southern Confederacy." The saying, according to his explanation, came from a speech he made in Savannah, and he now claims he was misquoted and misunderstood.

He says: "The metaphor of the 'corner-stone, was but a repetition of what Judge Baldwin, of the Supreme Court of the United States, had declared from the Federal Court bench several years before. In that case he said that slavery, as it then existed in the United States, was the 'cerner-stone' of the old constitution. I stated to the meeting that it was the same in our new constitution of the new confederacy which was formed at Montgomery. I said further this 'stone' which had been rejected by several of the builders of the old constitution, had been replaced by us as the chief of the corner. This is the sum and substance of what I said on that occasion."

Just wherein Mr. Stephens has been misunderstood he does not make clear. He seems to have gone a little further than Judge Baldwin, who was content to say that "slavery was the corner-stone of the old constitution," whereas Mr. Stephens claimed that the Confederates had taken this partially rejected stone and made it the "chief of the corner." His meaning was that African slavery was at the very foundation of the Southern Confederacy, and in that sense the phrase is universally understood.

THE Ohio Democrats are hunting around for a local issue to fight this year's campaign on, and the probability is that they will pitch upon the temperance question as the most available one. They hope that the failure of the Legislature to enact a law regulating the liquor traffic will separate the temperance vote from the Republican party and concentrate it on a third candidate, and so enable the Democratic candidate to slip in by a plurality. This programme illustrates very well the animus of the Democrats. There was a liquor bill introduced into the Legislature, known as the Pond bill, the passage of which would have been satisfactory to a majority of the temperance people. It was defeated however, every Democratic vote being cast against it at the order of the party's caucus, while every Republican vote, with only twelve exceptions, was thrown in its favor. Having defeated it by a solid party vote the Democrats now expects to go before the people and claim that the Republicans are responsible for the failure of the bill because they had a majority in the Legislature. But that game is a little too smart, and has been employed too often to hoodwink successfully the people of this late day.

INSTEAD of subsiding into its normal channel after the late freshet the Missouri river is higher now than when the ice broke up, and has done much additional damage in Iowa, Nebraska and Dakota during the past two days. No full accounts have yet been received from the submerged country in Dakota, from the fact that all mail communication with Yankton is suspended, the railroads to that point are still under water. The destitute farmers and villagers gathered there are being fed by Government rations, issued in pursuance of the timely order of the President, but this relief is only temporary, and a large sum will be needed to get them back to their ruined homes when the waters recede and support them until they can make a crop. A good start has been made in New York city toward raising subscriptions for their aid, but thus far it is only a start. The movement should be vigorously pushed in all the large cities and towns until these suffering people are made comfortable, and industry resumed with as little delay as possible.

IN all probability Voorhees will never speak again. He is, as it were, clogged for life with a petrified speech.

THE Cincinnati Commercial calls for war. It says: Judge Robertson represents Republicans in New-York who do not fall down and turn their faces to Utica the first thing each morning. It was the duty of the President to recognize all the Republicans of New-York, and he has done it fairly. Of course Mr. Conkling is irritated about it. He is always irritated about everything. The Senate is engaged in an imbecile contest, and does not approach the public business. We believe this is the fault of Mr. Conkling, who is attempting to arrange a conspiracy with Southern Senators that they shall be bosses of their States if they will help him to boss New-York. The thing to do would be for the President to withdraw at once all nominations before the Senate—let that body go—and then put in seven solid months dismissing and appointing officers, taking care not to have in office one friend of Conkling's in the State of New York. When there is war, the best thing is to fight.

IT is settled in Ohio that the Republicans will renominate Governor Foster, and it is also as well settled as any future event can be that they will reelect him. The Democrats are casting about for a candidate to run against him who will at least give them a hope of success. John G. Thompson says he thinks that William Means, whom the Democrats with some Republican help have just elected Mayor of Cincinnati, is the man, and as Mr. Thompson is something of a power in the party, Mr. Means is very likely to be chosen. He could get no Republican support for Governor, and the net result of his running might be similar to that which the dog had when he let go his hold on a piece of meat to grab for its shadow.

IF the deadlock is broken, look out for a fresh rush of office-seekers upon Washington. It requires only the shadow of a hope to start those peculiar people on another chase. They will work harder, and undergo more discouragements, in search of an office than they will in any other pursuit. They are the most convincing arguments that can be made in favor of civil service reform, for they are perpetual illustrations of the utter demoralization which a taste of office causes.

[From the Cheyenne Leader.]

In a few minutes the train started and was speeding away at a lively rate, when Senator Fair suddenly came out of the telegraph office. He gazed at the departing train, now five hundred yards away, and quickly took in the situation. He would have to run or get left. The former alternative was taken, and the fifteen-million-aire started on a run like any fifteen-cent plebian. He ran hard, too; his speed would have done credit to a professional pedestrian. There were no $20 gold pieces or $1 silver pieces hopping out of his pockets at every bound. Neither did any wallet stuffed with greenbacks fall by the wayside. Wherever Senator Fair's money was—if he had any—it was securely stuffed away for safety.

Meantime the gap between the train and the Senator widened, although the Senator ran well. He generally runs well; at least he ran very well for Senator-ship. But he got left yesterday. However that race was in Wyoming, and not on his native heath, Nevada.

When the Senator was forced to take the track for his course he was influenced to abandon it at once, for he turned in alarm when he heard the switch engine puffing behind. He stood still, not knowing what to do, when the engine came up, and the engineer requested Mr. Fair to mount the foot-board and he would catch the train for him. So the Senator from Nevada worth $15,000,000 bounced on to the foot-board in front of the engine, and then another race ensued, but this was one between engine and engine. The donkey screeched wildly, and finally the train was stopped at the bend, when the Senator from Nevada took his seat in the sleeper.

Many persons witnessed the little event and the interest was high, from the reason that the person who was left was a millionaire and yet subject to the small ills of life that beset the pathway of the impecunious traveler.

A DWARF WHO WEARS A MAN'S HAT.—John McConnell is the name of the smallest man in the coal region, and one of the smallest men in the world. Unlike many other small men, he is only noticeably small in the matter of height. His head, the breadth of chest and size of his waist are those of a fully developed man. To see Mr. McConnel take a seat on an ordinary chair would bring a smile to a bronze statue of grief. He either climbs upon it like a three-year-old, and when once seated his feet dangle six inches from the floor. He has a pleasant and intelligent-looking face, which he keeps closely shaved. He will be thirty-two years of age on the 24th of June, and stopped growing a good many years ago. He was born in Vermont, and came to the coal regions of Pennsylvania nine years ago. He wears a 7¼ hat and measures 36 inches around the chest. His arm measures 16 inches from the shoulder to the tip of his middle finger. He wears a No. 1 boot. He stands 3 feet 11¼ inches with his boots on, and weighs 86 pounds.

An Incident.

BY AGNES MACDONNELL.

Unarmed and unattended walks the Czar,
Through Moscow's busy street one winter's day,
The crowd uncover as his face they see—
"God greet the Czar!" they say.

Along his path there moved a funeral,
Gray spectacles of poverty and woe.
A wretched sled, dragged by one weary man,
Slowly across the snow.

And on the sledge, blown by the Winter wind,
Lay a poor coffin, very rude and bare.
And he who drew it bent before his load,
With dull and sullen air.

Emperor stopped and beckoned to the man:
"Who is't thou bearest to the grave?" he said.
"Only a soldier, Sire!" the short reply.
"Only a soldier dead."

"Only a soldier," musing said the Czar;
"Only a Russian, who was poor and brave.
Move on, I follow. Such a one goes not Unhonored to his grave."

He bent his head, and silent raised his cap;
The Czar of all the Russias, pacing slow,
Following the coffin, as again it went
Slowly across the snow.

The passers of the street, all wondering,
Look on that sight, then follow silently.
Peasant and prince, and artisan and clerk,
All in one company.

Still, as they went, the crowd grew ever more,
Till thousands stood round the friendless grave,
Led by the princely heart, who, royal, true,
Honored the poor and brave.

NOTE.—This incident is narrated by a lady who was living in Moscow when it took place.

Our Story Teller.

On the Veranda.

The people who owned it called it a porch, but Miss Hetherington thought that a rather depreciatory way of speaking of her country resort, for the summer boarders lived there. The house might have been a very pleasant one when it was opened, but in the summer time it was virtually closed, because of flies and heat and dust and sun, Mrs. Fries said. In the morning the bed in the boarders' room was nicely made—too nicely for a considerate person to disturb—the furniture all dusted and put back against the wall, and the furniture was solid mahogany; the blinds were shut, and indeed the windows too, and coming in out of the sunlight one had to grope one's way all over the house. So Miss Hetherington went out upon the veranda immediately after breakfast and remained there if she remained near the house at all, till bed time.

Just now it was delightful. She had just left the breakfast table, but by the little watch that hung from her girdle it was already 9 o'clock, and that little watch kept excellent time. All through the meal there had been a pleasant clickety music from the neighboring field. John had told Miss Hetherington the night before that he would about reach the middle of the field with his mowing machine when she left the breakfast table the next morning, and sure enough there he was. What a Hercules was this young farmer Fries! and a handsome, stalwart fellow, and a fine, frank excellent nature, and a gentleman withal. The Friesos had always sent their sons to a sort of college for a few years to polish them up; then if they chose to go on with a profession, the money was found for it. In fact, several of John's cousins were students of divinity, of medicine, of law; but John chose to be a farmer, of his own free will his mother said. She was a nice, quaint, wholesome little woman, whom Miss Hetherington liked very much, and Mrs. Fries seemed to return this affection, until John—But that was a matter of course. "Celava sans dire," Miss Hetherington said, and felt sorry that these little hobbies of mothers always interfered with her happiness. She felt sorry, but not sufficiently so to let it interfere with her own. She had begun by liking Mrs. Fries better than her son. She amused her, and interested her; the old lady had all that native ingenuity vigor, simplicity, and honesty of expression which the few years at college cured for John, but of late Mrs. Fries had been busy. It was haying time and she went to bed early. Mrs Fries did; not Miss Hetherington, who disliked going to bed more than anything in the world, unless it might be getting out of bed after once she'd gone to it. As for John, he liked the moon. But there he was, quite in the middle of the field, as he had sworn to be. The veranda faced the road, running the whole length of the house. Some fine old horse-chestnuts shaded the lawn, which extended down a dozen of rods or so to the road; then across the fence was the field of hay where John was mowing.

Miss Hetherington put up her glass. Her sight was tolerably good by moon or gaslight, but deficient in the glarish light of day. Without her glass, John and the mower looked one; she couldn't tell where John began and the mower ended. Miss Hetherington put up her glass, and just then the veranda made a pleasant picture. A few vines had been trimmed with due regard to shade, but most of them had been left to their own sweet will, just as the farming was left to John, and there is always something delightful in an unfettered will. Humming birds and bees, darning-needles and butter-flies, and all winged things, darted in and out of the blossoms, and a gorgeous spider hung midway in a magnificent palace made in a single night. The spider wore black and yellow, the fashionable colors, and so did Miss Hetherington, who was not only a handsome creature, but she had a great respect for the accessories of beauty. The spider paused in the construction of his palace to look at her, and so did John.

All at once the music of the mower ceased, and the fine figure at the helm, or whatever the governing power of a mower is called, took off his wide-brimmed straw-hat and waved it in the sweet summer air; and Miss Hetherington, not to be outdone, took from her belt a little trifle of lace and linen, and also waved it. And heaven knows how long this little pantomime might have gone on if Miss Hetherington had not heard behind her a peculiar cough; it was an apologetic cough—a cough that begged to be excused for intruding—and it came from Mrs. Fries, who was also looking at Miss Hetherington, but not like John or the spider, or many well-known ways of looking at a pretty woman. There was something in that gaze of Mrs. Fries that went to Miss Hetherington's heart without elating it.

"Good morning" said Miss Hetherington—"Good morning, Mrs. Fries, you tell me without speaking that I must not interfere with the shining hours of haying time, and you see it is just as if I went within doors—not a bit of me is to be seen, and I promise you won't be till the tedious sun goes down."

Miss Hetherington had put herself and her draperies quite behind a huge Japanese honeysuckle, and now sank into one of the big red easy chairs, and reached a book from a convenient and sheltered nook which was crammed with paper-literature. She yawned slightly. The compact mass of summer reading took a somewhat wearisome shape.

"And how long does this troublesome haying time last?" she said.

Miss Hetherington looked up, and was surprised to see that Mrs. Fries was an old woman. From a comfortable middle age she had shrunk and faded into something quite pitiable. The red in her cheek which had hitherto bloomed like that in a winter apple, had suddenly fled, and her eyes, which had always held the snap of virility, were sunken and dull.

"It's too late to tell you not to interfere with John," she said; "it's too late; the mischief's done."

Miss Hetherington was touched and interested. The fault she had found with her summer reading was that she couldn't get to believe in it. Here was something before her eyes.

She suddenly put up her soft white hands, from which a shower of lace receded and catching the trembling, wrinkled hands of Mrs. Fries within her own, she drew her gently into a chair by her side, behind the honeysuckle.

"Dear madam, dear Mrs. Fries," she said, in that low, caressing voice which was a valuable accessory of Miss Hetherington's, "don't, please, worry. I assure your there is nothing to worry about."

"Begging your pardon, miss, I think there is," said Mrs. Fries; "if you am't in earnest, my John is; and that's what I want to talk to you about this morning. I don't say you're all to blame. It's perhaps just as natural for you to go around trappin' foolish boys like John as it is for that nasty black and yellow spider to lie in wait for flies."

"Madam!" Miss Hetherington drew herself up haughtily.

"Begging your pardon again—perhaps I'm wrong; perhaps it may be as John hopes, though I sorely distrust it. You ain't the kind of a girl to take kindly to farm life; and there may be a way to leave the farm behind—the farm and me too, and everything that might be a trouble to you—if you only love John. Ah! you draw back. I thought you would. I told John so last night. 'John,' says I, 'she's fooling you; that's only her summer sport,' and he tried to laugh me off. But I talked on and on, trying to show him the pitfall he was tumbling into, when all at once he turned upon me and 'mother, hush!' sez he; 'there's only this to say, in that case, what's fun to her is death to me!' And I don't say you can help it, any more than yonder spider can help catching flies. The Lord made you both, and sent you, but I wished it had pleased him to send you somewhere else and spare my John."

"I'll go—I'll go now!" beginning, in fact, to gather up her draperies.

"It's too late now. The mischief's done." And it seemed that more mischief was at hand, for a great cry arose from the opposite field, and a bad sight could be seen from the veranda. Nothing less than a stalwart man dethroned from his proud perch on the mower and trampled under hoofs that had always seemed to move only at his bidding.

Miss Hetherington stood there as if turned to stone. Mrs. Fries had disappeared, and in the meanwhile they were bringing the poor young farmer to the house on a rough litter. I approached Miss Hetherington. "I think we had better go," I ventured to say, for I was the only other summer boarder. "Come, let us go and pack up and get away Kate."

She turned on me quite fiercely. "You, a woman!" she said, "and talk of going at a time like this!"

"I spoke as a boarder, Kate, not as a woman. You know we have no right to intrude any further; we were not wanted in the beginning; we forced ourselves upon these worthy people."

"We didn't know there was a man within miles," said poor Kate; "that is, a young man—I mean a—a gentleman—"

"Of course we didn't," I said, encouragingly; "but we know now, to our, to their, and to everybody's cost. Let's get away, Kate; it's the refinement of cruelty to stay any longer."

She stood there quite dazed and I led her quietly up stairs into our darkened room. The whole house seemed kept in readiness for any sort of catastrophe. I confess I was dying to get rid of it, and threw open the shutters the better to see to pack our trunks. Upon which Kate ran over and closed them again. "How can you let the sun come in on the carpet in that way?" said Kate, "and the flies. Haven't we done her enough injury already?"

"Speak for yourself, my dear," I said, and at that moment the poor little old lady ran in, crying and wringing her hands.

"He isn't—" I stammered, while Kate became white as the wall she leaned against. The old lady went up to her and grasped her dress. "Packing your trunk? Going?" she said, in a hollow whisper.

"She don't want to go," I said, coming to the rescue. "She'd rather stay, but I don't think it's best. I—"

The old lady turned to me, keeping her hold on poor Kate's black and yellow trimmings. "I don't care whether you go or not," she said to me, "but if you've a soul in your body you won't take her with you. He's asking for her now; she may save his life. Let her save him first; for God's sake, let her try to save him!"

There was more force than politeness in the old lady's appeal, but this was no time for platitudes.

"Mrs. Fries," said I, "there's one thing about it—if she stays now she must stay forever."

Kate uttered a soft cry and put her arms about the old lady. She looked over at me, with a wonderful light in her eyes and a sudden softening of her whole being.

"Oh, is that it?" I said. "Well, stay, then, dear, in heaven's name, and so will I till the worst is over. You won't be incongruous here Kate; you're wonderfully adaptable—"

But she had gone away to John with the old lady.

It was a terrible risk. I waited in great suspense placing what hope I could in trepanned skull and the modern improvements in artificial limbs, for I knew from the first he wouldn't die—young men like John hold on to life, especially with a temptation like Kate by the side of them.

I am writing upon the same veranda a year after the accident in the hay field. The honeysuckle is in full bloom, and Kate's pet mockingbird is shrieking in a flood of light that radiates the dining-room. Young Mrs. Fries has substituted nets for the Cimmerian gloom that used to envelop the house. Now any one with half an eye can see to the farthest end of the corridor, and the bedrooms have a sun-bath every day. The old lady don't mind. She's all the way of twenty years younger, and the best of company. John didn't lose his leg, let alone his life, and the funniest part of the whole thing is that Kate has made quite a match. John happened to be ever so much richer than any of the marriageable men we knew.

For the Fair Sex.

Senator Mahone's wife weighs more than 200 pounds, and he weighs 90.

We wouldn't care to be the prettiest girl alive. We'd rather be next to her.

A Missouri man won a breach of promise case because a contract made on Sunday is not legal.

Mrs. Garfield, who speaks French and German fluently, is said to be the first President's wife able to talk with foreign diplomats in the court language of Europe.

The wife of Secretary Windom is the daughter of a Congregational clergyman in Massachusetts. In her youth she was a teacher in Ohio, and she now teaches her own children.

Mrs. Mary N. Bliss, of Columbus, Ohio, has given $10,000 to Kenyan College for the erection of a new hall in the College Park, to be called Hubbard Hall, in memory of her dead brother, George Hubbard.

We hear of a man who justifies his meanness toward his wife by asserting that he and she are one, and therefore by refusing to furnish her with money he practises the heroic virtue of self-denial.

Thirty days after a Michigan man got a divorce from his wife to marry one with a handsomer face, the divorced woman fell heir to $287,000. You bet that ex-husband feels like a man with the jumping toothache.

Local Small Talk.

—An April shower in reality is worth two in the almanac.

—Conductor Ed. Nolan looks "tony" in his uniform, and business like.

—York's new hospital will be dedicated on the 28th of this month.

—William Burns, a typo, of this place, has gone to Altoona to work on the Call.

—Stupendous fish stories are scarce this season. Possibly John Wagner has monopolized the business.

—Most anybody can afford to own a sleeping car. A pretty good sleeper can be purchased now-a-days for only $12,000.

—An order for thirty mine trucks is being filled at Duncan & Co.'s machine shops for Berwind, White & Co., Snow Shoe.

—Raw onions, applied to the feet, hands and arm pits, it is said, will cure the smallpox. Enter this on the receipt book.

—There are said to be over thirty cases of scarlet fever in the Buffalo Run district, and many of them likely to prove fatal.

—Two Tennessee married women skipped off with a couple of soap peddlers the other day. They may be in Greece by this time.

—Commercial drummers are arriving in town by the dozen on every train. Bellefonte is one of their strongholds for trade.

—It is said that this changeable weather produces freckles of an old gold color. How everything does play into fashion's hands.

—The strawberry festival season comes on apace, and young men had better be salting down their spare change—this isn't leap year.

—The theatre season has closed in Bellefonte, and now is a good time to begin on those proposed repairs and alterations at the Opera House.

—Mr. Charles Fenstermacher, formerly of this office, now employed in Short & Forman's job office, in Cleveland, shortly intends locating in Pittsburgh.

—Several car loads of lumber arrive in town with every freight train. The demand on the lumber yards in town for building material is on the increase.

—The original Garfield man, Greer, of this State, has been appointed third assistant postmaster general. Wonder what the other "originals" will do now.

—Mr. Thomas Mingle, ("Haines Township") of Aaronsburg, started for Council Bluffs, Iowa, on Tuesday, where he has secured a position in a mercantile establishment.

—The Altoona Sun says "the popular game of leapfrog has been revived lately as a popular amusement in this city." Leapfrog is evidently the Sun's definition of the raquet dance.

—The active temperance ladies of town are industriously circulating petitions remonstrating against the granting of license to sell intoxicating liquor, and are getting hosts of signers.

—A son of Mr. William McClenman caught on Wednesday the largest trout that has been taken from the waters in this vicinity since the season opened. It weighed something over two pounds.

—Our older readers will find much of interest in a communication from Warren, Ohio, in this issue. The author was a resident of Bellefonte many years ago, and gives some interesting reminiscences.

—Borough and township auditors are required, under a heavy penalty, to publish an annual financial statement. The posting up of handbills does not do away with the law requiring newspaper publication.

—From the appearance of things on Allegheny street, in the vicinity of the school house, one might think an underground railway was in course of construction, instead of a search being prosecuted for a leak in a water pipe.

—The Lewistown Gazette man didn't occupy much space in telling his readers about the change of affairs at the State College. He crowded it all into just eight words, as follows: "Shortlidge, president of the State College, has resigned."

—Our corpulent friend, John Dawson, will preside over the Greenback meeting to be addressed by General Weaver. He will also entertain the General during his stay in town. Of course they drink nothing stronger than "cold tea!"

—A strange looking individual, said to be the champion snake yarner of Central Pennsylvania, followed John Wagner all over town the other day watching for a chance to slay him. John's snake story has accidently come to his ears, and he is afraid that, if allowed to live, he'll ruin his reputation.

Old Recollections of Bellefonte.

MR. EDITOR:—Dear Sir:—In a recent issue of your paper you mention an old relic, viz., a copy of the old Bellefonte Patriot, published by Henry Petrican, Esq., which brings to my mind old time recollections. It seems but yesterday that the Petrican boys and the old 'Squire (their father), a very respectable old Scotchman, were walking the streets of Bellefonte, and congregating at Evan Miles' hotel corner on the arrival of the stage from Lewistown to hear the news from a distance as well as to discuss the home news. If my memory serves me right, Henry Petrican was a lawyer by profession, and I often heard it remarked that his writing could be read without an interpreter, as he was a noted penman. It was before his father, old 'Squire Petrican, that Jas. Monks had his examination when arrested for the murder of Roland Giles. It was at that examination that James Petrican slipped an old execution, or something of that sort, into the hands of old Billy W., an eccentric old man, who could neither read or write, but who, after looking it over for some time as if reading it, began to lament by saying, "Great pitty, great pitty; terrible, terrible," and with a long-drawn sigh remarked to the by-standers in an audible voice, "Damaging testimony against poor James Monks."

I also noticed in one of your late issues an obituary notice of Colonel Brown, whom I well knew when a mere boy, but never saw him since; but all he was he owed to his own exertions. He was very fond of reading, and the writer used to lend him books to read, and when living in Puddingtown he used to lay at night in front of a large pine knot fire, with his head to the fire and book before him, and read and read until they would have to urge him off to bed. The example of such perseverance after knowledge should be an incentive to the youth of the present day, who have so much better facilities for acquiring education and knowledge.

But I fear I have been trespassing on your patience in regard to circumstances which took place in my younger days, although it might be interesting to many of your older readers.

Respectfully yours,

WARREN, O., April 18. B. J. G.

Report of Mt. Eagle School.

Our school closed April 12th with a public examination. A large number of citizens were present. Quite an interest was manifested in our school during the term, both by parents and children; but we have been shamefully neglected by the School Board. We had the privilege, during the five months' term, to behold the face of one of that august body. The examination at the close of the term was to be conducted by the School Board, but not one of their number was present. School directors, you have a duty to perform.

Number of pupils enrolled during the term, 46; per cent. of attendance for the term, 91. Pupils who attended every day: Miss Edith Leathers and Master George Hicklen; those absent one day were Miss Olive Leathers and Miss Libbie Cox; absent two days, Masters Samuel Bathurst, Austin Leathers and Miss Carrie Leathers; those absent from three days to six days, Masters Cheyney Hicklen, William Hicklen, and Misses Bertha Bathurst and Emma Vanhorn.

REUBEN FLETCHER, Teacher.

Without Railroads, Banks or Almshouse.

We doubt if there are many of our readers acquainted with the fact that Pennsylvania contains a county which is without railroads, banks or almshouse, and yet such is the case, and Fulton is its name. The News of Huntingdon says:

"A citizen of this county says that while stopping over night at a hotel in the village of Burnt Cabins he was informed by the landlord that Fulton county had several things to boast of, which he proceeded to recount as follows: The county has no railroad, no banks, no bridges built at the expense of the county, is out of debt, and lastly has no almshouse. All this appeared very nice, but upon the wall of the bar was tacked a notice which read something like this: 'Notice—The keeping of William Watson, a pauper of Dublin township, Fulton county, Pa., will be sold on Wednesday, Feb. 17th, at 10 o'clock, to the lowest bidder.' It was signed by the overseers of the poor." Greene county is also without railroad facilities.

—Mr. Richard Harris, better known as "Dick" among his friends, is confined to his room with a slight attack of pneumonia. His friends all wish him a speedy recovery. In consequence of his illness the "run-out" at the forge was compelled to cease operations, but it is hoped that Mr. Harris will be all right in a few days, when work will again be resumed.

—The last of the tents used by the Milton sufferers were returned to the State arsenal last week.

Items of Interest from our Exchanges.

Mrs. Frederick Haines is the oldest person living in Snyder county, being in her 90th year. What a splendid subject for insurance speculators.—Williamsport G. & B.

A ewe belonging to Mr. Frank Rodgers, on the farm of Mr. Enoch Short, of Barr township, gave birth to four lambs recently, and they are all living and bid fair to grow to full sized sheep.—Cambria Herald.

One of the finest rafting floods we have witnessed for a long time is now at full tide. Logs and rafts are floating by our borough, covering acres in the river and Clearfield creek, and it looks now as though there would be a good harvest for the up-stream lumbermen.—Clearfield Republican.

A cow belonging to John P. Zook, of Belleville, Mifflin county, killed herself the other day under peculiar circumstances. A girl was engaged in feeding a calf while the mother was chained to a stall near by. The calf, with its head buried in the bucket, bawled, and the peculiar sound so alarmed the cow that she made a desperate effort to break the chain, only succeeding in breaking her neck.

A month ago, or more, a young gentleman named James Chrysostom O'Harro, was bit on the hand by a stallion which he was endeavoring to stable at his home in Munster township, Cambria county. The wound at the time was thought of no consequence, but it ultimately developed into a case of erysipelas, followed by scarlet fever. On Saturday last the young man died, regretted by a large number of relatives and friends, and Tuesday morning his remains were laid away to rest in the cemetery connected with the Church of the Holy Name of Ebensburg.

Edward McDonough, a well known citizen of Reading, dreamed for six nights in succession that he had found gold at a certain spot on Neversink mountain. Finally impelled by curiosity, he visited the mountain, found a spot which corresponded with that pictured in his dream, and digging into the earth struck a hard substance which resembled ore. He carried some of it home, and is under the impression that it is gold ore.

Feeding on its Own Hair.

We have heard before of people eating hair, but never heard of a case wherein the strange appetite was developed in one so young as the Harrisburg Telegraph gives an account of below:

"A singular case exists on Thompson avenue, above the Pennsylvania railroad round house, and near the Seventh street Presbyterian church. It is that of a child about seven years old, which eats its own hair. It has pulled out one-fourth of its hair, plucking at one spot until it has it all out, when it commences at another, in which it has persisted until it has pulled the hair on one side of the head from back of the ear all out, leaving an entirely bare spot on which new hair is growing. The child eats all the hair it thus pulls out of its head, and seems to regard it as a luxury. We forbear to give the name of the child. It lives with its brother and sister; its father and mother being both dead. It has become very intractable, resisting ordinary control, wayward and passionate when reprimanded for its habit. On the side of the head from which the long hair has been pulled, short is now growing, the child having begun to pull the hair from the top and left side. It will take a long tress and eat at it until it has devoured it entirely. This is unquestionably the most singular case of this kind of which we have ever had any account."

Guard Against it.

The ravages of small pox in Berks county ought to put every community on its guard against the spread of this disease. In the alms house of that county there are thirty down with it, and as may be imagined a general alarm prevails. In this case its spread seems to have been occasioned by culpable negligence, a bed spread, which had been used on a cot occupied by a smallpox patient, having been thrown out into the yard, where a number of children were playing. The children played with this piece of bed clothing, and in this way the disease, it is supposed, spread among the little ones. With diphtheria, typhoid and scarlet fever and smallpox prevailing in all directions, let the watchword of every one in authority, as well as heads of families, be clean up and disinfect every hole and corner.—[Lewistown Gazette.

—A big brawny chap, of African descent, walked into the depot the other night and attempted to work up a quarrel with Billy Thomas. As usual, Billy was ready for business, and in just four minutes from the time hostilities were opened the aggressive party was out in front of the building trying to hold the platform down with his back, and Billy had resumed work as though nothing had happened.

Van Dyke's SULPHUR SOAP
Is superior to all other soaps. It is combined with Sulphur in its pure, unadulterated state, which enters the pores of the skin, being absorbed into the blood through the minute capillaries, and thus acts upon the skin, whether it is healthy or in a diseased condition, both locally and constitutionally, thereby eliminating all impurities from the blood, and exciting the skin to healthy action. It produces a fineness, purity, and freshness of the complexion which is unequalled, and can be produced by no other means. No toilet, nursery or bath room is complete without it. It makes the skin pure, clear, white and healthy; is cleansing, deodorizing, disinfecting, soothing, healing and purifying; removes dandruff, chafing, ulcers, sores, eruptions, roughness and redness of the skin; relieves itching, burning and stinging of the skin, and irritation of biting and stinging insects; will relieve itching piles when nothing else will have any effect. Ask for VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP; insist upon it, and take no imitation. Sold by druggists. Aschenbach & Miller, Proprietors, 301 Callowhill street, Philadelphia. 12-20-1y

Miscellaneous.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified, it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

KIDNEGEN
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT
KIDNEY REGULATOR
AND DIURETIC.
KIDNEGEN is highly recommended and unsurpassed for Weak or Foul Kidneys, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, Loss of Energy, Nervous Debility, or any obstructions arising from Gravel or Bladder Diseases. Also for Yellow Fever, Blood and Kidney Poisoning, in infected malarial sections.
☞ By the distillation of a Forest Leaf with Juniper Berries and Barley Malt we have discovered Kidnegen, which acts specifically on the kidneys and urinary organs, removing deposits in the bladder and any straining, smarting, heat or irritation in the water passages, giving them strength, vigor, and causing a healthy color and easy flow of urine. It can be taken at all times, in all climates, without injury to the system. Unlike any other preparation for kidney difficulties, it has a very pleasant and agreeable taste and flavor. It contains positive diuretic properties and will not nauseate. Ladies especially will like it, and gentlemen will find KIDNEGEN the best Kidney Tonic ever used!

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

It Cures Spavins, Splints, Curbs, Ringbones, and all similar Blemishes, and Removes the Bunch without Blistering.
For Man it is now known to be one of the best, if not the best, Liniments ever discovered.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
Is the only positive cure known, and to show what this remedy will do, we give here as a sample of cases cured by it a statement which was GIVEN UNDER OATH!
To Whom it may Concern: In 1875 I treated with Kendall's Spavin Cure a bone spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he has never been lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated them with Kendall's Spavin Cure. R. A. GAINES.
Enosburg Falls, Vt., Feb. 25th, 1879.
Sworn and subscribed to before me this 25th day of Feb., A. D. 1879.
JOHN G. JENNE,
Justice of the Peace.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.
ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best Liniment ever used for any deep-seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for CORNS, BUNIONS, FROST-BITES or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for BEAST is good for MAN, and we know from experience that KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE can be used on a child one year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!
Read below of its wonderful effects as a liniment for the human family:
HEMATITE, Mo., Aug. 28, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & CO.: GENTS: I am so overjoyed in view of the result of an application of your Kendall's Spavin Cure that I feel that I ought for humanity's sake publish it to the world. About thirty-five years ago, while riding a young ugly horse, I was injured in one of my testicles, and from that time to three weeks ago a slow but constant enlargement has been the result, giving me a great amount of trouble, almost entirely preventing me from horseback riding, which was my usual way of traveling. I saw a notice of your Kendall's Spavin Cure; never once thought of it for anything except for horses, but after receiving the medicine and reading over what it was good for, feeling terribly exercised about my difficulty, for I had consulted many physicians and none gave me any specific but when it could be endured no longer to remove it with the knife. I applied your Kendall's Spavin Cure as an experiment, and it was so painful in its application that I concluded not to repeat it, and thought no more about it until near a week, and lo and behold one-half of the size was gone. With joy I could hardly believe it. I immediately applied it again, and have made in all about one-half dozen applications, running over a space of two weeks, and the terrible enlargement is almost entirely gone, in view of which I cannot express my feelings of delight. It has been a Godsend to me; may He send to others with like troubles.
JOHN RICE,
Pastor of Hematite Congregational Church.
P. S.—You are at liberty to put this in any shape you may please. I am not ashamed to have my name under, over or by the side of it.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!
Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.
Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Cold Blooded Murder.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 22.—This afternoon intelligence has been received of a terrible murder on Boston Mountains, twenty miles west of Fayetteville. The victim was Jerry Seerat, a farmer, and was widely known as an eccentric character. Thirteen bullet holes were found in the dead man's body. His pistol lay at his feet, but had not been discharged. His murderers are supposed to have been a white man and two negroes, but it is not positive. No arrests have as yet been made.

Lord Beaconsfield's Funeral.

LONDON, April 23.—It is understood that the House of Commons, when it meets on Monday, will pass a vote of condolence for the death of Lord Beaconsfield, moved by Mr. Gladstone, and will immediately adjourn until after the funeral. Lord Beaconsfield's coffin was closed and fastened this morning. His face showed no signs of change. Several members of the royal family have intimated their intention to attend the funeral. The Prince of Wales will represent the Queen. Nearly all the members of the late Cabinet have expressed their intention to attend. Admission to the churchyard at Hughenden will be strictly limited to bearers of tickets issued by the executors.

About 100 invitations to the funeral were sent out yesterday. They include personal friends of the deceased, and representatives of foreign powers. Prince Leopoid viewed the remains on Thursday.

General Grant.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 13, via. New Orleans, April 23—Great interest is manifested here in Railroad matters. General Grant and Senor Romero were looked on with distrust upon their arrival, but they now appear to be gaining ground. By consenting to have the Gulf terminus of the Mexican Southern Railroad changed from Anton Lizardo to Vera Cruz they have secured powerful aid from friends in this city. It is now thought that Gen. Grant my secure the modifications to the railroad concession he desires. The advocates of the Topolovampo Railroad seem to be losing ground, even with the great influence of Goveanor Pacheco, of California, who is here on be half of that company. Many comments are made on the sudden departure of General Diaz for Matamoras just at this time. The city is crowded with Americans.

Rip Van Winkle II.

ALLESTOWN, April 23.—Guymyhere, the Hungarian, who has been sleeping for seventy two day in succession at the Almshouse, arose from his cot at eleven o'clock to-day, walked to one end of the room and then returned to his couch. He also opened his eyes at the same time. The power of speech has not yet returned, but the attending physicians say that the crisis is past, and anticipate a speedy restoration to his normal condition.

The Car Strike Spreading.

ST. LOUIS, April 25.—The strike of street railroad conductors and drivers was inaugurated Saturday morning according to the programme, and all the lines in the city except two are greatly crippled. The President of the Bellefontaine Line acceded to the demands of the strikers and has the full number of cars in service. A car on the Market-street road having an old conductor and a new driver on board was mobbed at Sixth and Chestnut Streets by a gang of outside men and the conductor was seriously hurt on the head, but aside from this no disturbance has taken place. The few cars in service are mainly manned by new men, very few of the old employees having failed to join the strike. The Companies so far have been greatly disappointed in procuring new men, and it looks now as though they will be obliged to comply with the demands of the strikers. Public sentiment is in favor of the men. Some four or five hundred strikers formed in procession down town this morning and with an improvised band of music marched to Turners Hall, where they held a meeting. They were heartily cheered by citizens on the streets as they passed.

Puebla Railroad Accident.

DENVER, Col, April 25.—A dispatch from Puebla, Col, says: This afternoon a passenger coach, containing fourteen passengers, on the Denver and Rio Grande train which left here from Omaha last Wednesday afternoon, jumped the track two miles east of Rock Tunnel and rolled one hundred and fifty feet down an embankment. No other cars left the track. Seven men and one woman were killed outtright and three passengers are slightly injured. No employees of the road were injured except the fireman, who was riding in the coach. The following are the killed: Mrs. C. Declododt, residence unknown; James Lynch of Jamestown, Kansas; G. D. Brewer of Springfield, Mo.; G. Hall of Indianola, Iowa; L. Isaacs of Terre Amoorila, New Mexico; D. Shoales of Lawrence, Kansas, and one unknown man.

A Heavy Failure in Arkansas.

NEW ORLEANS, April 25.—A special to the Democrat from Little Rock, Ark., says: "Lier, Hecht & Co., merchants, at Pocahontas, failed today. Liabilities, nearly $200,000. Assets not stated, but believed to consist principally of real estate. They have creditors in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Memphis and New Orleans."

The International Monetary Conference.

PARIS, April 25.—The Committee of fourteen—one Commissioner appointed by each of the fourteen States participating in the International Monetary Conference—sat to day for the first time under the Presidency of J. C. Kern, Swiss delegate, as senior. The latter proposed that M. Cernuschi, the French delegate, be appointed President of the Committee. M. Cernuschi declined and Mynheer Prolik, a delegate from Holland, was elected. It was decided to make no report of the sittings of the Committee. M. Cernuschi and Mr. Thurman were entrusted with the duty of drafting a list of questions to be submitted to the Congress. The next meeting of the Committee will be held when the task is completed.

Beaten to Death with a Poker.

BOSTON, Mass., April 25.—Eliza Pope, aged 36, residing at No. 4 Jasper Place, was brutally mudered yesterday afternoon by James Tracy who went into her room and attempted an outrage upon her. The woman resisting his attempts, was beaten with an iron poker so severely that she died in a few moments after the assault. Tracy was arrested before leaving the house.

Brother Kills Brother.

Christian Risser, a Mennonite preacher, residing near Brunnersville, a small village in Berks county, had occassion to be away from home for a few days this week, and during his absence his two sons, named Amos and Henry were cutting potatoes for planting. While thus engaged a quarrel arose between them, which ended fatally. It appears that Amos was doing a certain amount of work which Henry dictated, where upon a scuffle followed, during which Henry pulled out a large dirk knife and stabbed his brother in the abdomen. Ames fell, bleeding to the ground. Some neighbors who happened to pass by at the time came to his rescue and carried him to his home. Medical aid was at once quickly summoned, but when the physician arrived Amos was so weak from the loss of blood that the doctors have no hope of his recovery. Word was immediately sent to their father informing him of the occurrence. He was expected to arrive home Thursday night. The wound in the boy's body is about two inches long, one inch deep, penetrating into the intestines. Amos Risser is about twenty-one years of age. Henry is aged fourteen years. It is stated that the brothers have frequently quarreled together.

Broke his Neck.

Friday afternoon between two and three o'clock a fatal accident occurred at Bird-in Hand to a German named William Folmer, employed by Mr. William Fisher, who resides in East Lampeter township, about two miles from the scene of the accident. Yesterday morning Folmer asked permission of Mr. Fisher to drive to this city for the purpose of purchasing a new pair of shoes. Permission was granted and the man came to Lancaster in a small spring wagon drawn by a mule. After making his purchase, Folmer in the afternoon started for home, considerably under the influence of liquor. Arrived at Bird-in-Hand he got out of his wagon at Buffenmyer's tavern and asked for a drink, which was refused him on the grounds that he was drunk enough. Folmer then got into his wagon again and started up the road leading from Bird-inhand to Soudersburg, on his way home. When nearly opposite the residence of Mrs. Amanda Herr he was seen to fall out of the wagon by that lady, who was in her yard, striking upon his head, the wheels of the wagon passing over his neck. Several persons immediately went to where the unfortunate man lay, but he was found to be dead, his neck having been broken by the fall.

Fragments of Western News.

A dispatch from Ozark, Ark., reports the suicide there, by laudanum, of the Rev. H. Thomas, on account of rapidly-growihg blindness.

The New England excursion party bound for California, which left Chicago Thursday, arrived here safely last nigh. A member of the Denver journalist met the party and left with it for that city at 8 p. m.

Steamboat men from up the Ohio River report the death of George McDaniels night before last near Troy, Ind., from a pistol-shot in the head, fired by a man named Lynch, in the course of a quarrel between them. Lynch escaped.

The Penns Valley Mutual Assessment Life Insurance Co.

The above company, which bears the favorite name of "Penns," was chartered March 17 of this year, with head quarters or home office in the pretty and thrifty village of Millheim, Centre county, Pa. It is officered by some of the best men of that section, its president, Mr. S. K. Sankey, being especially active and industrious in the discharge of his duties, ever on the alert to make this the most popular company of the kind in the old Keystone. That he will succeed there is room for no doubt, inasmuch as he is strengthened and constantly supported by a Board of Directors composed of the most solid, substantial, reliable and honest business men of the country who with him, are determined that this company shall live and thrive through fair and square dealings and in no other way.

Although but a month has elapsed since being incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania, the business thereof has already assumed mammoth proportions, some four or five men being almost constantly employed at clerical labor in their office and an army of agents being in the field multiplying the office work in a most gratifying manner. It is by no means a local affair, for application for agencies from distant states—South, east and west—are pouring in upon the Secretary from day to day—and they are being rapidly supplied with commissions to act as such, and provided with an abundance of printing matter, fully and clearly detailing the popular features of the mutual system of insurance. Time nor space will not permit us to dwell at considerable length upon the distinctive features of the "Penns Valley," but, briefly, we may add, it guarantees low assessments; nonforfeiture of Certificates after being a member for three years; after, 67 per cent. of the amount insured has been paid in by assessment, the holder being then entitled to a matured or paid up policy, subject to no mortality assessments, and only liable to the annual dues, which are trifling; departments conforming to age, thus encouraging the comparitively young to insure at reasonable rates—the same being scaled according to age—in a word, it offers many advantages over other companies. We believe it to be conducted on sound business principles, and therefore worthy the support and continued confidence of the public—particularly those inclined to insure on the plan mentioned.

—At the splendid banquet recently given at the Tivoli Gardens, Mexico, in honor of General Ord, there was placed on the table in front of the guest of the evening a novel confection, described on the menu as "La Boule du monde enchantee." This globe, which was decorated with great ingenuity, represented the principal countries of the world, especial prominence being given to the geographical relations of Mexico and the United States. At the close of the banquet General Ord was requested to break the crust of the globe. He did so, and to his perfect astonishment a number of tropical birds flew out and disappeared among the trees outside the summer-house, where they began to sing delightfully.

Sechler & Co, do not deal in tropical birds. Who said they did? But anything constructed from their groceries and placed upon a table would be as inviting an object to those who were to feast upon it as the confection above alluded to, because they would have the satisfaction of knowing it to be made of pure, fresh material. That's what the people want now-a-days—purity and freshness in their groceries, and Sechler's is the place to go for those qualities.

—Have you tried the world-renowned Boston baked beans? If not, why not? Men, women and children, who have once partaken of them, cry for them. For sale only at Sechler's.

—The largest and finest stock of chewing and smoking tobacco in the county is at Sechler's. This firm disposed of several cases, more or less, to lumbermen alone last week.

—Harry Green's cigars will go like hot cakes on show day. Country people, who read, know where the best cigars are to be had.

—This one fact is being brought before the minds of the people of the U. S., Kendall's Spavin Cure is not excelled as a liniment.

—Salt is needed to properly prepare food, and if you buy it at Sechler's you'll get the right kind of an article.

Some Men's Luck.

General Gordon was severely wounded four times in one battle and within an hour, and lived to fight again; and this is only a specimen of the singular good luck that attended some men. In 1864 a Michigan cavalryman named Drake was out foraging in the Shenandoah Valley in company with a comrade named Cooper. Cooper was in a smoke-house after meat and Drake was on guard at the door when thirteen Confederates suddenly appeared. They were mounted, and advanced at a gallop, part of them firing as they rode up. One bullet found a suitable opening in the stone wall of the smoke-house and flew in and killed Cooper dead in his tracks. Drake was standing beside his horse, and his saddle was hit by three bullets, one of which glanced through his hat. As soon as the trooper could realize what had happened he swung himself into saddle and dashed at the circle around him. The moment he happened in view he was a target for carbine and pistol. His horse made a rush at the line, but was driven back. Followed by Cooper's horse he gallopped around and across a circle not over one hundred feet across, all the time under a steady fire the confederates. This fire was soon returned by Drake, who fired away seven cartridges and then drew his saber. His seven bullets, as afterwards vouched for, killed two men, wounded two more, and killed one horse. His fire broke the circle and he got out of it, although exposed to the fire of ten men. As for Drake, on his return to camp his comrades counted up the record of a truly miraculous escape. Three bullets struck his scabbard, two his hat, four went through his clothing, one burned his cheek, one raked his knee, and two hit his left boot. Cooper's horse was killed by one bullet, while nine failed to disable the other.

Our School-Houses.

The escape of the children in a Birdsboro school-house from death or mutilation by being caught under the falling bell is due to what is usually termed good fortune rather than to the care and oversight of the Board of Directors, who are presumed to have at least as much regard for the safety o their own children and those of their neighbors as they would have for their horses and cows. There are too many school-houses in our country that are little better than death-traps, in which children are liable any day they attend school to be crushed or burned to death. Houses are built, in both city and country, two or three stories in height, with the only means of egress for hundreds of boys and girls limited to an open stairway in the centre of the building, built in such a manner as to form a perfect flue, through which flames which might originate from ill-constructed heaters in the basement, or from any other cause on a lower floor, would be drawn. The retreat being thus cut off, nothing would be left for the inmates but death from burning, or a more lingering one from injuries received from leaping from the windows. If there are no laws to compel directors to attend to such matters, care should be taken that only such men are elected to these important positions as will give the welfare of the little ones in their care their best thought and most careful consideration.

"My Father is Beckoning to Me!"

From the NATIONAL (Danville, Pa.,) RECORD, March 18, 1881.

"A Song and Chorus, entitled "MY FATHER IS BECKONING TO ME!" one of the most beautiful pieces of music we have ever had the pleasure of listening to for sometime, was rendered at the Mahoning Street Presbyterian Church last Sunday evening, at the opening of the service. The melody was of a rich-flowing and pathetic nature; The various harmonies in the chorus were new and original, and the style in which it was rendered was a credit to the singers, as well as to the author, for the voices were well balanced, and the articulation was very good. The music is the organist's latest production.

Dixfield Maine, Nov. 3d, 1881—Dr. B. J. KENDALL & Co., GENTS:—Please find enclosed 25 cents for Revised Edition of your Horse Book. I have tried your Kendall's Spavin Cure for Curb and it has done all you claim for it. By using one half bottle it entirely cured the lameness and removed the bunch.

A Broker's Romance.

It was a very touching incident. We heard a southern editor telling it on an elevated train yesterday, and he was in a great hurry to get home and put it in his paper, and make an affidavit that it was true. The scene of this romance opens in a palatial mansion in New York. A lady sits in a parlor filled with the most costly luxuries. Diamonds as big as filberts glitter in her ears. Lace costing thirty-six dollars per yard almost hides the color of her dress from sight. A clock costing $18,000 strikes the hour of four P. M. At this moment her husband rushes in the house, pale, haggard, suspenders broken, hat bunged up, and his boots all mud.

"Have you—have you caught the epizootic!" she gasps as she starts up.

"Oh! wife, we are busted—ruined—gone up—smashed flat as a shingle!" he moaned in reply.

"How?"

"I invested $75,000 in the Crooked River Railroad, at ninety-eight and it has declined to four. Jay Gould has bought and consolidated it. We must leave this palace and all these luxuries, and works of art, and take two fourth-story rooms over in Brooklyn."

She laughed merrily and long. Had the sudden news crazed her? He thought it had; but he was green. She left the room for a moment, and returned with a pillow case containing $200,000 in greenbacks.

"Let the Crooked River Railroad crook away!" she laughed as she emptied the money at his feet. "You have given me this money during the past five years, a few thousand dollars at a time, to buy little articles of toilet.

"I had saved it up to get me a pair of stockings for Sunday, but I cheerfully hand it over to my good husband to set him on his pins again. Take it my darling, and if you can get a whack at Jay Gould bite him hard, and I'll back you with the $50,000 I had laid away to send to the heathens on Christmas!"

They embraced. All was joy and peace.—Wall Street News.

Given up by Doctors.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."—Salem Post. 16-2t

Special Announcement.

THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR!

"The many have too few, and the few too many."

What is the use of wasting a dollar when you can save it?

Big prices will not do in these times, when even the wealthy cannot afford to waste their money, and the poor require double duty of every dollar and every penny.

Not by favor, but by merit alone will we maintain and increase our unrivaled reputation.

We deal in good Goods and not trash, and believe the masses will patronize that house that sells the best Goods for the least money.

Buy for cash and at one price. Who can tell the waste of money when you get your goods of houses that buy and sell on long time?

This is the music and these the prices that crowd our store, whilst other merchants sleep on their counters, little dreaming of the day of disaster and ruin awaiting all who buy on long time and sell on longer; who pay big prices, and sell at figures that no people can afford to pay.

SPECIAL BARGAINS.

OUR PRINCIPLES.

At the very foundation of our undertaking in Bellefonte is the One Price system.

Respectable merchants generally have but One Price for most goods, but the temptation to make exceptions now and then proves too strong for all, but very few.

Here the rule is absolute. We are so committed to the One Price system that an exception in any department, no matter how great the temptation, would disgrace us.

One Price, if stuck to, has to be a moderate price, a fair price. Let that be your assurance in your dealings with the Bee Hive Stores.

Respectfully yours,

Bauland & Newman,

BELLEFONTE, PA.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Trade Strikes at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The molders are out in all but three or four foundries in this city, leaving between fifteen or twenty works idle. The employers are also combined and obedient to their order. The proprietors of the Globe Works, who yielded to the demand of fifteen per cent. advance, to day notified their men they could no longer pay the advance, and the men went out Both sides are determined and both are organized. All classes of workingmen are preparing to strike, if not paid what they decide to demand. All kinds of tradesmen here, even hod-carriers, have been called to meet and organize a union, and a call has been issued for all street-railway employes to meet at midnight, after their work is done, to arrange to demand more pay. Apparently some central power is at the bottom of the organization of so many labor unions throughout the country. Doubtless strikes are contemplated very like 1877.

Floods in the West.

MILWAUKEE, Apr 19.—Special to the Republican from the interior of Wisconsin report alarming floods. At Fon du Lac the river is a raging torrent. At 5 P. M. the river was a frightful sight. The water had overflowed the banks and submerged a great many of the streets. The entire western portion of the city is under water, which is still rising. Families in the Third, Fourth, Sixth and Seventh wards have been compelled to evacuate their premises, and the lumber yards along the river have been converted into floating wood yards. The narrow guage tracks are under water and several washouts have already resulted. On the Southwestern washouts are also reported. The damage will be immence.

Death of Lord Beaconsfield.

LONDON, April 19.—Lord Beaconsfield is dead. Last nigot at 10 o'clock his strength had greatly declined, and some hours later the bulletin announced that his symptoms gave grounds for more grave anxiety than at any period during his illness.

Lord Beaconsfield had a very severe relapse during the night, and died peacefully at 5 o'clock this morning. He was perfectly conscious to the last. Doctors Kidd and Quain and Lords Rowton and Barrington were present when Lord Beaconsfield expired.

Protest Against the Death Penalty.

BOSTON, April 19.—Wendell Phillips filed a protest to the Governor and Council against the execution of Stearns K. Abbott, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Crue and sentenced to be hanged on next Friday. Phillips contends that, even admitting Abbot killed Mrs. Crue, there is no evidence showing he did it with premediation or malice aforethought. Phillips in ending his protest says: "I do not care to enlarge on the motive which I think impels the Executive to commit this crime, which in my view makes the act a murder in the strictest sense of the law."

Social Sensation at Minerva, O.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—A Herald special represents that society in and about Minerva, Ohio, is convulsed over Jessie Witherspoon, a young lady of one of the first families, aged nineteen, and hitherto bearing an irreproachable reputation, to-day causing the arrest, on a charge of adultery and attempted abortion, of J. W. Vogelsong, dealer in musical instruments, a man of family and also previously a social luminary. Dr. Smith has been arrested as implicated in the attempted abortion

Opening of Lake Navigation.

SANDUSKY, April 19.—The steamer Alaska arrived at this port from Detroit this afternoon, her first trip, and the first arrival from the north to a Lake Erie port. Her officers report the lake clear of ice from the mouth of the Detroit river to Sandusky Bay. The Alaska expects to make regular trips hereafter. Off Cleveland there is a large field of ice and it is uncertain when that harbor will be opened.

Lieutenant Grant Resigns.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Frederic D. Grant has forwarded his resignation as First Lieutenant in the 4th Cavalry aid-de-camp (with the local rank of Lieutenant-Colonel) to the Lieutenant General of the army. Mr. Grant will accept a position in the employ of the Chicago, Texas and Mexican Central Railroad.

John Kelly Still on Top.

NEW YORK, April 18.—At the Tammany election to-night the John Kelley ticket was elected by a majority of fifty in a total of 711. The election was the most exciting held in many years in the Tammany Society.

A Negro Lynched.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., April 19.—A negro charged with assassination of a leading citizen of Gadesden county some time since was taken from the jail in Quincy on Sunday by disguised men and hanged.

Trouble Promised.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—The street railroad conductors and drivers of all the lines of the city have decided to make a demand for a reduction of hours of labor. They now work twelve to fourteen hours on short runs and sixteen to eighteen hours on long runs and the conductors receive $2 and the drivers $1.50 per day. What they want is a reduction to twelve hours per day all round at the present wages, and they assert if the companies do not comply with their demand they will strike. A meeting is to be held tomorrow night at which their demand will be formulated and presented to the companies.

Children Killed by Their Mother.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—A Mrs. Nutt, living near Camden, Arkansas, while in a state of frenzy, called her eldest child, a boy twelve years old, from a field where he was plowing, knocked him on the head, and threw him into a well, where she had previously thrown her four other children. Finding that one of the children was not drowned, but was clinging to the side of the well she descended into it, tore away its grasp, and thrust it down into the water thus completing her diabolical work.

Another Freshet in the Missouri.

OMAHA, NEB., April 20.—The Missouri continues to rise. It has now risen about three feet and is advancing from half an inch to an inch an hour. It stands now about eighteen feet above the low water mark. The smelting works are again in trouble and the fires are out. The weather continues warm. The snow on the bills is melting fast and the smaller streams are swollen badly north of us, and another flood is feared, though the best judges think there is not snow enough to cause as serious a freshet as the last.

Three Children Burned to Death.

EVANSTON, ILLS., April 20.—A horrible catastrophe occurred here yesterday at noon. A small house was discovered to be in flames in the eastern part of the village. Knowing children were confined in it Peter Swederland rushed in and bore out one, which died in his arms from its burns. Another also perished in the debris and vigorous search is in progress for its remains. The family, colored people, are left in a state of destitution.

The Raging Missouri.

OMAHA, NEB., April 21.—Old settlers recall the saying that the Missouri river has a mortgage from bluff to bluff, in view of the second great overflow this season. Instead of arriving at a standstill, as was expected, the river has been rising at the rate of an inch an hour and is now about twenty feet above low water mark and all concerned are preparing to meet as high a flood as that of the 18th inst. The overflow this morning blockaded the B. and M. and K. C. St. J. and C. B. Railway tracks south of this point and interrupted work at establishments in the lower part of the river bottom. The Union Pacific company are ready to run a bridge of cars across the low track near the transfer depot, if necessary, to maintain communication as before. Not so severe damage is anticipated as was wrought by the previous flood, but much inconvenience is inevitable.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA., April 21.—The Missouri here is as threatening as ten days ago and to-night is but six inches lower than the highest point. The bottoms adjacent to this city are again under water and families have been compelled to move out. The railroads are suffering more or less from overflowed tracks and the C., B and Q. has been compelled to resume running from here to Malvern via Wabash. Other trains are also running regularly to-night. The water is still rising at the rate of an inch an hour.

Beaconsfield's Burial Place.

LONDON, April 21.—It is understood the friends and relatives of the late Lord Beaconsfield are willing to assent to a public funeral, and the burial of the remains in Westminster Abbey, unless directions to the contrary are found among the papers of deceased.

Mr. Gladstone has written the following letter to Lord Rawton: "I learned of the decease of Lord Beaconsfield with sad surprise. I shall be prepared to give directions for a public funeral." Sir Nanthaniel Rothschild, on behalf of the executors, thanked Mr. Gladstone, stating that Beaconsfield's will directed that he be buried at Hughenden by the side of his wife.

Bloody Ending of a Family Feud.

ST. LOUIS, April 21.—A despatch from Uvalde, Texas, says a long standing feud between the families of General John R. Bayler and Mr. Gillhirst culminated yesterday in a fight between General Bayler and one son on one side and Gillhirst and two sons on the other, in which the elder Gillhirst was killed outright, one of his sons mortally and the other seriously wounded, and young Bayler slightly hurt. Both familes are prominent and well known. General Bayler was Governor of New Mexico some years ago.

Timely Topics.

It is no wonder that uneasy lies the head that wears a crown. Since 1848 thirty-three attempts have been made to assassinate reigning sovereigns in Europe.

Farmers sell spring-water in the streets of Baltimore at five cents for a gallon, and two cents for all that one person chooses to drink. In a rain-storm recently one farmer with seven barrels of spring-water, sold enough to give him about $16. Many hotels and private houses in Baltimore obtain their water from suburban springs.

A gentleman in Rochester, N. Y., has patented a device for ventilating houses by using the well-known facts that plants give off ozone and oxygen and absorb and use carbonic acid in their growth. His invention consists of a small conservatory from which pipes issue to every room of the house intended to convey the necessary oxygen.

The manufacturers of standard locomotives in the United States have orders enough to keep their works busy during the entire year. The railroad companies cannot get locomotives as fast as their travel and traffic require, not withstanding the works are being driven to their utmost. All this shows a remarkable degree of prosperity for the railroads and locomotive builders.

Several of the large jobbing houses in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore have discarded drumming entirely, and say they have found that half the money drummers cost expended in advertizing pays better. A Southern exchange says: "There will probably be, in a few years, less of drumming, and the country trade will be more easily plied by the jobber through the medium of the press that it is now."

Revised editions of the Bible bid fair to be thick as leaves in Valembrosa very soon. Beside the English edition there is promised the results of a German commission, which has been at work since 1871 on a revision of Luther's version of the Bible. Luther's is said to be the only version that merits comparison with the King James edition. In September the new text will be published for criticism and amendment.

The manager of the New York Newsboy's home says that since its organization he has had under his care 170,773 different boys, some of whom are now over forty years of age. During those years he says there were furnished 1,201,037 lodgings, and 1,186,178 meals, and 13,850 wandering and strange boys have been returned to friends and relations. The expenses of this work have been $283,574, of which amount the boys have contributed $100,300, and thus have paid thirty-five per cent. of the expenses. During the entire period 18 405 have saved $50,-114 in the savings bank.

It is a matter of some astonishment with many persons that Miss Ida Lewis, the heroine of Newport waters, cannot swim, and yet has saved such a number of lives. The secret of her success is understanding the peculiar and dangerous currents in the vicinity of the light-house and the management of her boat so that the drowning man cannot grasp it on either side which might swamp it. Miss Lewis has a stroke of the oar entirely her own, and by her skill with it has succeeded in rescuing more lives than any of the strong swimmers among the boatmen of her locality.

A SOUTHERN VIEW OF THE LEADLOCK.—We stated some time ago that there was no good in the present contest in the Senate for the South, and more recent events and effects confirm us in the opinion. The two great parties hold out firmly, but unfortunately for the South, two-thirds of the Union regard the Democratic party as representing it, and believe the struggle to be in the interest of the Solid South. Recent speeches by the Democrats tend to confirm rather than lessen this opinion. The stage appeals for the eternal solidity of the South have the effect of firing the Southern heart, and convince conservative Northern men that they have just cause to distrust the South. If Senator Davis of Illinois, had acted with the Republicans the Southern Senators would never have dreamed of continuing this irritating contest, yet the Democrats have more claims on Senator Davis than they have on Senator Mahone. The former was elected by the aid of Democratic votes and supported Hancock for President; the latter was elected in opposition to Democratic votes. —Vicksburg Herald.

The Powers of the Electric Eel.

In a recent stress of weather a schooner hailing from the upper Amazon, and bound to New York, put in at Hilton Head, N. C. for water, and the curiosity of a throng of colored men was aroused by a monkey and several parrots, and they fairly overran the vessel until the skipper's patience was on the ebb. At length one fellow sited the cover of a five gallon tin can full of water that was lashed to the foreside of the galley, and asked: "What you got yere, boss?"

'They're a couple of Chinese eels,' said the cook, looking out of his house and tipping a wink to the skipper, who was sitting on the rail.

'Dat's jest my business boss,' said the colored man, while the others gathered around. 'I'm de boss tredder for shedders and eels dis side of Newbern.'

'These ain't scrubs like you find around here,' said the coo .

'Look ere boss; dis place beats de world for eels,' the man retorted. 'I tred one the other day over three feet long.'

'Oh, you're talking about minnies. They don't count them as eels in China. It takes a man to handle a China eel. I don't believe you could lift one from the can.'

"Spose you don't want to bet on dat?' the boss eeler asked.

'Wal, I don't mind,' the cook replied, reaching under his apron and bringing out a dollar.

The colored men held a consultation, and scraped together a dollar, which was placed in the skipper's hands. Rolling up what sleeves he had, the champion bent over the big can and commenced to feel around, as the water was rather too muddy to see anything.

'Dey ain't nothin' to be so brash about,' he said, as he came across something at the bottom. 'Stan' back dere.'

Keeping one hand on his find, he put in the other hand and took hold. There was a splash in the can, and with a yell that could be heard half a mile away, the colored man jumped in the air with his eyes sticking out of his head, and his arms rigid and fastened like rods to an eel that was more than five feet in length. He roared like a bull, until the eel finally squirmed out of his hands and fell into the water, when the champion staggered back and rushed to the pier, followed by his astonished friends.

'What's the matter?' the cook cried; but the 'boss tredder' had disappeared.

'The China eels' were a pair of electric eels that were on their way to an aquarium in Boston, and the man's feelings may be imagined when it was known that as soon as he touched the fish with both hands and completed the current, he was struck with a shock equal to fifteen Leydon jars of 3,000 square inches of surface. This wonderful power is confined to four genera of fishes, and that of the Gymnotus is the most powerful. In the upper Brazil county they are used by the natives to facilitate the capture of wild horses. A herd is surrounded and driven in the direction of the stream or lake containing the eels, and into which the frightened animals rush, stamping on the fish, many of which are as large as a man's leg and six feet in length, that in defense throw out their shocks of electricity, so completely benumbing the horses that they are easily caught. The eels also exhaust their powers and are captured with comparitive safety, rallying again, however, in a few hours.

Notes and Observations.

Is it right for a temperance man to accept a cordial invitation?

A doctor's degree has been conferred by Strasburg University on a Japanese.

Strawberries are coming in quite plentifully. They are about $125 a bushel.

A Boston man has carried one leather pocketbook fifty-two years, and still uses it.

The London religious tract society has circulated 80,000,000 books and tracts in 130 different languages.

A boy fell over the precipice at Rochester into the Genesee river, a clear drop of 120 feet, and was taken out of the water unhurt.

Perpetual motion is perhaps impossible to obtain, but you can approximate it, by putting a boy on a chair at a funeral and telling him to sit still.

An idiot of hideous aspect hid in a house at Owingsville, Ky., and, when found by a woman, threw up his hands and hallooed at her. The fright killed her on the spot.

The Bayadere poke bonnet is in favor. Pronounced "Buy-a-dear poke bonnet." When spoken with proper effect the old man rarely fails to come down with the cash.

The stock of unlicensed Toronto bar rooms is seized by the police, and once a week the contents of bottles and kegs are poured into a bath tub and allowed to run to waste. Three basket of champagne were in the last lot destroyed.

It is claimed that the missionaries of the Virginia state Baptist association have in ten years induced 19,-816 persons to become Christians. The board of management of this missionary agency wants $10,000 to keep up its beneficent work.

A Kentucky colored clergyman is reported on his way to Chicago in search of his wife and the deacon who has eloped with her. He carries a Bible in one pocket, and says he hopes it will prevent him from using the pistol which is in another; but he isn't sure.

Gossip of the Stage.

It is said that next season the Maplesons intend to bring to this country a thoroughly equipped opera comique company.

Steele Mackaye is always doing something to improve the theater. His latest exploit is a seat which disappears through the floor when the audience arises.

With a concert at the Theatre Royal, Stuttgart, Miss Emma Thursby completed the fifty two concerts of the German tour for which she was engaged by Maurice Strakosch.

Liszt has been longer before the public than almost any prominent artist now alive. He made his debut in Oderberg about sixty years ago, and his professional labors are not yet ended.

In the hall of a chalet in the Bois de Boulogne is a marble tablet with the inscription, "Ici est morte Mdlle. Neilson, celebre tragedienne Anglaise." It makes it cheerful for the guests.

It is said that two poets do the bulk of the work in Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera. One is a high flown brute, while the other is a tender thing who descends to details.

It is stated that Herr Neumann, a Leipsic manager, has purchased the exclusive right to perform the "Ring of the Nibelungen" in France, England, America, and Russia until the year 1886.

Miss Genevieve Ward, it is said, wants to come to this country next season upon a certainty of $80,000. We hope the lady will get it. A good many more would like to do precisely the same thing.

Modjeska revived is likely to be the sensation next season. In place of Bernhardt, Modjeska, it is a pleasure to say, is a good woman; has a husband of whom she is proud, speaks English and is an actress.

Nearly all the seats for the performance of "Œdipus Tyrannus," at Sanders' theatre, Cambridge, in May have been disposed of at a large profit within the last few days. The three performances will be given on the evenings of May 17, 19 and 20.

It is now stated that Anna Dickinson declined to appear as Claude Melnotte because the manager of the theatre objected to Claude being dressed in mauve colored pants and a plug hat. Anna evidently proposes to do most of the driving when she goes out riding.

Verdi is finishing his new work "Otello," the first representation of which will be at Vienna, where Mme. Materna will take the role of Desdemona. The composer has sent M. Sellier a letter of thanks and a superb bronze, in recognition of his fine personation of the part of Rhadames in "Aida," and his unfailing punctuality and zeal during the fifty consecutive representations.

The scenery, costumes and properties for the Spanish spectacular play, "Castles in Spain," which is to be produced at Niblo's Garden in May, have just been brought to this city. The play is in three acts and seventeen tableaux, and its scenic features are said to be novel and beautiful. A new English libretto for the piece has been written by a New York journalist.

The Greatest Blessing.

A simple, pure, harmless remedy, that cures every time, and prevents disease by keeping the blood pure, stomach regular, kidneys and liver active, is the greatest blessing ever conferred upon man. Hop Bitters is that remedy, and its proprietors are being blessed by thousands who have been saved and cured by it. Will you try it? See another column.—Eagle. 16-2t

"How They Parted" is the title of a poem that came in yesterday. We have not had time to read the undoubtedly able effort, but if the old man was around they probably parted in a highly unsatisfactory manner.—Chicago Tribune.

A CURE AT LAST.—Specifics without number for the cure of Catarrh have been extensively advertised, and doubtless there is some virtue in all, but the evidence is overwhelming that Ely's Cream Balm goes more directly than any other to the seat of disease, and though it is a comparatively new discovery, it has resulted in more cures within the range of our observation than all the others put together. Wilkesbarre, Pa., Union Leader, Dec. 19, 1879. 16-2t.

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhœa or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured, pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

A Bad Elephant.

Few showmen, says a New York letter, envy the Canadians who bought Emperor at Barnum's sale a few months ago, and predictions are made that the vicious brute will raise mischief before he gets through the season at Canada. It has been about a year since Emperor traveled. His nature is so treacherous and his temper so violent that the keepers dread to have him around, and he was lent to the Central park collection. He was kept chained up after he went to the park, but even then he made vicious lunges at people and came near killing a keeper. Superintendent Conklin had a great iron cage made, and Emperor was put in that. The cage had no bottom, and one day Emperor rushed at a man at whom he was offended, and carrying the cage with him pinned the man against the partition. Long iron rods now rivet the cage fast to the stone floor, and Emperor's capacity for mischief is very limited. For several months Emperor has been on his good behavior. His head droops meekly, and no trace of viciousness can be seen in his mild, blinking eyes. The keepers wonder what he is going to do next, and do not abate in their wariness.

Mr. Conklin had Emperor out for an airing two or three times during the winter. The neighborhood of the menagerie was first cleared of visitors, and then the old fellow was led around the buildings with a chain. He showed no emotion of any kind at this glimpse of freedom.

The question of a keeper for the coming season was at first a perplexing one to Emperor's purchasers. Old keepers all over the country know the beast by sad experience or reputation, and have declined with thanks, proffers of situations.

"Don't touch that elephant; he'll kill the whole of you," wrote one man. "He broke my arm and collar bone in 1876, and I don't want anything to do with him." One writer was earnest in his appeal to the owners not to trust Emperor under any circumstances. Other keepers had reminiscences of fractured ribs and legs to relate in explanation of their declinations. An experienced keeper has been engaged, however, and by some it is believed that Emperor's fit of sulks is over, and that he will be a good elephant all summer.

CELEBRATED POISONERS.—At one time, poisoning was largely practised in Italy. The most celebrated of the Italian poisoners were two women named La Spaza and Tophania, who were both executed. The latter confessed that she had been instrumental in poisoning six hundred people, during a life of seventy years. Her poison was colorless and tasteless, and could not be detected. It was put up in phials and labelled by her "Manna of St. Nicholas," though it was usually known by her own name as Agua Tophania. So common a thing did poisoning become that fashionable ladies kept bottles of this fatal water upon their dressing tables, as they would lavender water. By regulating the dose victims could be despatched in a week, a fortnight a month, or a longer period, as suited the plans of the poisoners. In England seventeen persons were poisoned by Rouse, the Bishop of Rochester's cook. Madame de Brinvilliers, a young and beautiful Frenchwoman of most engaging manners, ran a distinguished career as a slow poisoner. By the advice of her husband, she leagued with a poisoner by the name of Saint Croix to despatch her father and brothers, that she might inherit their property. The fellowship of crime inspired her with a guilty passion for her accomplice, and she afterwards sought to poison her husband that she might marry Saint Croix. But the latter had no fancy to form a closer connection with this wicked woman, and by the secret administration of antidotes, prevented the husband's death. She was at length detected in her practises and perished on the scaffold.

INDIAN WASHERWOMEN IN MEXICO. A great chatter, ripples of laughter, sounds of su'len thumpings! These will greet the visitor to the capital of Mexico in many of its quaint and old world streets. A broad bar of golden sunlight comes from out an open gate-way, and within a patio, or yard, are the lavanderas, or laundresses. Water is scarce, terribly so, in Mexico, hence the existence of so many public wash-houses where the gossiping women most do congregate. A large oblong tank stands in the center of the court. It is one foot deep and filled with water from the celebrated aqueduct of Belen, which runs on Roman arches festooned with lichens, mosses and ferns, from Chapultepec, the favorite residence of the ill-fated Maximilian and situated about five miles from the city gate. A wooden canopy protects the tank, and stone troughs placed at even distances are provided for the industrious laundresses, for they are Chinese in their unceasing toil. There is a nominal charge for permission to wash, and as many as fifty women may be seen engaged at the same time. As in Spain, their attire is of the scantiest nature possible, and once the rebozo is cast aside—well, a very diminutive skirt is about the entire of the remaining costume.

Mary Clemmer, so long known as a Washington correspondent, has abondoned her letters and now devotes herself almost entirely to literature.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors and falling out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft, glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recommended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

Is a sure cure for all the ordinary diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. It cures and prevents Chicken Cholera. Your cow is certain to yield 25 per cent more and better milk and butter. Stock fattens on one-fourth less feed.

Being in possession of a large number of excellent testimonials, I subjoin a few:

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—GEORGE BOND, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, JONAS PASOUR, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—JONATHAN WEAVER, Derrysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS. WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter cured the chicken cholera. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

Address me for a pamphlet full of useful information for the farmer, horseman or dairyman. F. A. MILLER,

Local Department.

—Lock Haveners were immensely pleased with Bob. Burdette's lecture.

—The display of "sidewalk statuary" was unusually large and varied Sunday.

—Here's a pointed item: Nine billion of pins were sold in this country last year.

—Mr. George Potter, of Renovo, has been spending a few days at his home in this place.

—Straw hats made their appearance on the streets yesterday. Look out for a snow squall.

—There was little disorderly conduct on Saturday night, and the streets were comparatively quiet.

—A number of our citizens regaled themselves with a drive into the country districts last Sunday.

—There hasn't been as much freight handled at the depot in this place in the past five years as at the present time.

—John Ludwig started for Michigan about a week ago, but some how or another he turned up in town again Friday.

—Spring arrived in Millheim last Thursday, according to the Journal. The gentle creature will be along here directly.

—John Mason Duncan, of Montoursville, was in town Saturday, but for some reason neglected to register at this office.

—The churches are said to have been more largely attended Sunday than on any Sabbath since the opening of spring.

—John Dawson, it is said, is practicing on a Greenback solo, which he proposes to render at the Weaver meeting next week.

—Miss Georgiana Kemble, one of Mifflintown's prominent young ladies, is visiting in Bellefonte, the guest of Mrs. Thomas R. Hayes.

—The funeral of Mr. John Williams, yesterday, was largely attended. A number of relatives and friends from out of town were present.

—Rabbits, says an exchange, run wild in the streets of Lancaster. Perhaps by the time the next National census is taken that town will have been fenced in.

—A frog, weighing over seventy pounds, was run over by the cars below the round house yesterday, and—there, there, now, keep your collar on; it was only a railroad frog.

—Oscar Sternberg, a young son of Mr. A. Sternberg, was thrown from a wagon on Thursday afternoon, near Morris' lime kiln, and struck the ground with such force as to break his arm.

—An observing chap says that he counted thirty-seven different styles of spring bonnets in the church he attended yesterday, and he didn't carry his investigations beyond one row of pews, either.

—A sporting paper thinks the trotting record will be brought down to something like 2.07 this season. It is safe to say, though, that this will not be accomplished on the track at the Bellefonte fair grounds.

—A one year old son of Mr. Wm. Grove, on Buffalo Run, died on Saturday of scarlet fever. Two other members of the family are suffering from an attack of the same disease, and are not expected to recover.

—We doubt if there is any town in the State in which the sport of pitching quoits is indulged in so extensively as in Millheim. The season was opened there last week, and they expect to have quoit a time now.

—A tall individual, from up the Ridges, was in town Friday "celebrating." He began to slake his thirst early in the forenoon, and when he got ready to start homeward a sixty-foot street was too narrow for him.

—Our readers should beware of traveling corn doctors. A little child in Easton drank some of the liquid sold by one of these peddlers, warranted to cure corns. We didn't hear what became of the corns, but the child died.

—Snow Shoe had a slight blaze Friday afternoon. The roof of the depot caught fire from a spark from the locomotive, and was damaged to the extent of about $200. It had been burning several minutes before discovered.

—Saturday was a splendid day for trade, so far as the weather was concerned. But few farmers, however, were in town, and merchants had mostly to deal with shoppers of the female sex. This is the opening of a busy season with the farming community, and their visits to town from now on will be short and brief.

Blockading the Highway with Freight.

Teamsters and pedestrians are put to no little inconvenience every day by the blockading of High street, at the depot with freight cars. In past years little difficulty has been experienced from this cause, comparatively, but with the present increasing trafic of the road the obstructing of travel on this street is of daily occurrence, and is becoming an unbearable nuisance, besides being a serious hindrance to the transaction of business. Not unfrequently teamsters are obliged to wait half an hour for an opportunity to pass, and then they'll not get through unless they are mighty brisk about it. People on foot must either climb over the cars, and thereby run the risk of meeting with an accident, or spend a half or three-quarters of an hour in loitering on the street corner until the trainmen are pleased to make a passage way. Of course it would be all the same in case of a funeral or a fire.

If these blockades were unavoidable there might be some excuse for their occurrence, occasionally, but they are not. In one or two instances we have taken the pains to investigate the matter, and as far as we could discover there was nothing whatever to prevent the withdrawal of the cars from the crossing. Then, too, it is done in open violation of the rules of the company; but the latter is responsible for the digressions of its employees in this respect. No railroad, or any other company, has the right to obstruct travel on a public highway, and can be made to answer for such violations. The depot master has the power, we believe, to prevent these inconveniences, but if his orders and instructions are not heeded, then it behooves the Mayor to display his authority in the matter, and we know of several hundred citizens who would like to see Chief Burgess Powers make a move in this direction if these street blockades are not of less frequent occurrence in the future.

A Possible Homicide in Lock Haven.

On Saturday morning a man named Chush. Frankhouser, a raftman from Indiana county, got into a difficulty with officer Becker, at the boom in Lock Haven, and assaulted him with a club, inflicting, it is thought, fatal injuries. The Journal says:

Policeman Becker, to prevent a jam, was dropping a raft, when the two men in charge quarreled with him. One of them picked up a huge club, and with both hands dealt him a murderous blow over the right side of the head, cutting his ear to pieces and cutting his head and face in several places. Mr. Becker was unconscious for some time, and may be seriously hurt.

LATER.

Mr. Becker's attending physician says that the outer table of the brain is fractured, and that the chances are against his recovery. Frankhouser was immediately arrested after the wounded man's condition became known, and is now in jail awaiting further results. Chief Westbrook and Deputy Howell made the arrest.

On Monday Becker's condition was somewhat improved, and hopes of his recovery were entertained.

—The most pleasant social event of the season was the twenty-fifth anniversary, or silver wedding, of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Orvis, which took place Friday night at their residence on East Linn street. An unusually large gathering of friends, both from at home and a distance, were present. The presents were numerous and costly. Among the latter we may mention a very beautiful solid silver dinner service, presented by the Centre County Bar Association. A very handsome ice cream service, the gift of members of the Clearfield county bar, was also received.

—It may be well enough for the farmers of this county to keep an eye on a fellow calling himself Albert Necke, who is a liniment peddler and horse stealer. While in Morrison's Cove recently he passed himself off as a preacher from Myersdale, Somerset county. He wears a red moustache and chin whiskers of the same stripe.—[Tyrone Herald. Centre countians may as well look a leedle out for the chap also. Farmers cannot afford to have their horses stolen at this busy season.

—The movement to establish a seminary in our sister town of Milesburg is being successfully carried forward. The gentlemen who are at the head of the enterprise are meeting with substantial encouragement on all sides. $2,000 have been subscribed in Milesburg, and this amount will probably be increased to $3,000. If Milesburg can do this there is little doubt but that the balance of the funds required will be forthcoming.

—Philipsburgers are expecting a visit from Frances Murphy some time in May.

Sixty Years Ago.

A writer in the Springfield Republican gives the following interesting facts in regard to the condition of schools and the salaries paid sixty years ago:

"The wages for work sixty years ago among farmers were $10 a month. In 1827 I worked for Calvin Cooley, being twenty-one years old, and got $60 for six months, and gave $40 to my father to help support a family of ten children. Being the oldest, I had to support the rest, as he was a poor man and a miller. His wages did not average $1 a day to support twelve of us. Twice my father went to jail for debt in Springfield, and we had to live as we could for thirty days; but fish were plenty, and I was obliged to learn to catch them or starve. This made me a good fisherman. Many other similar cases in town were common in those days. Our school privileges were limited. Three or four months' schooling in a year was all the district could raise money to pay for, and at the rate of from $12 to $16 for male teachers in winter months. Ezekiel Adams and Crosson Pendleton got $16, being something extra for those days. The women teachers got from $6 to $8 a month. The school houses averaged in cost from $100 to $200, and were from 20 to 30 feet square, each containing an open fireplace. Our first lesson was to make our manners to all older people we passed while going or coming from school or at recess. What a great change in half a century! In the same place now stands a $25,000 school house, with teachers getting from $50 to $75 a month, and highly educated. Passing one of these schools, instead of the scholars making their manners to older people, they will insult or swear at you, and if you get by without a missile thrown at you or your horse, you are lucky; most old people fear to go past a pack of boys going to or coming from school. The use of education, now-a-days, and the morals of the people, are so different that it is noticeable to old people. The old stock of business and rich men, who are the framework of society, as it were, have better judgement of human nature and worth of property than the spendthifts that are living and being educated on the money their fathers have laid up with their limited education and wages. More than one-half the money spent to educate their children for the sake of elevating them in morals and manners is lost."

Parents, Read and Reflect.

One day last week a boy named Harry Brown, of near Harrisburg, had both his legs ground off below the knees, and died in a short time afterwards from his injuries. And this boy, when overtaken by this terrible accident, was doing just what dozens of boys in Bellefonte do every day of their lives—play about the cars at the depot. The wonder is that we have not been called upon to chronicle just such a butchery in Bellefonte from the same cause long before this. No vigilance on the road can prevent such trespass, unless a man went through this gang and clubbed them from the ground. The trouble has been and is that parents allow their children to run unrestrained in vagabondage. "Mangled by the cars," is the coroner's verdict in all cases of accident to these idlers. The fault is not with the companies or the men in their employ. It is with the parents of these boys, who, either unable or unwilling to control their children, must not complain when their children are butchered.

—The Michigan Legislature is working hard, seemingly, to make hugging a girl a penal offense. If it becomes a law and extends over the country we are inclined to think there will be not a little emigrating among both sexes, to Canada or some other place. Such a law is not in keeping with the progressive ideas of American citizenship, and the girls, especially, will not stand it.

—In speaking of the Pennsylvania Reserves the Harrisburg Telegraph says: "The survivors of this famous corps are brushing up their uniforms to attend the annual reunion to be held this year at Bellefonte, and to further the preliminaries incident to such gatherings, a meeting of the Reserves residing in this city and vicinity will be held at the headquarters of Post 98."

—A reunion of the soldiers of the late war residing in the counties of Centre, Lycoming, Potter, Tioga and Bradford will be held some time this summer, the date and place not yet having been fixed. A call for delegates to meet in Wellsboro, to make arrangements, will be found in another column.

—The Spark is the name of a new weekly paper recently started in Altoona in the interest of the liquor dealers of Central Pennsylvania. As liquor sets fire to men's stomachs, this sheet is very appropriately named.

Butter vs. Grease.

Two-thirds of the butter sold in the stores of Bellefonte is fit for little else than wheel grease. This may not sound very refreshing to customers, but it is, nevertheless, true. Now, then, why is it? Because the merchants do not exercise good judgment in making their purchases. They make no distinction between a good and an inferior article, and allow as much for one as the other; hence farmers are not particular as to quality. It stands to reason that a farmer who can procure 25 cents for a pound of grease (alleged butter) will not exert himself to manufacture a pound of good, sweet butter, knowing that dealers will as readily take the former as the latter article, and pay them fully as much. Our contemporary, the Watchman, of this week, contains the following in regard to this important subject:

"* * * They (the merchants) know that their customers must take it, and a pound of butter that some wagoners would not grease their axles with commands the same price that a pound of the article, of the best quality, would bring. The countryman is aware of this fact and he feels that, making good butter, which requires skill, care and time, is not a whit more profitable than making "store butter," which requires neither skill, care nor time.

"Is there no relief from this imposition? We certainly think so. If storekeepers will 'grade' their butter as they do their boots and hats, buying and selling good butter at a fixed rate and that of an inferior quality at a lower price, it will not be long until a change for the better will be noticed in the butter market. Farmers will endeavor to obtain the highest prices, and to accomplish this will manufacture a superior article, and when it is generally understood that bad butter brings bad prices, there will be precious little of it offered for sale."

Grand Soldiers' Reunion.

Soldiers of the late war residing in the counties of Lycoming, Centre, Potter, Tioga and Bradford are requested to send delegates, one or two from each organization, to meet at the Court House in Wellsboro, at 4 o'clock p. m., May 30th, 1881, to make necessary arrangements for a general reunion of soldiers of the counties named at a time and place then to be fixed. A circular to that effect has been issued and signed by the following gentlemen: Col. A. E. Niles, 1st Rifles, chairman; Capt. Wm. Chase, 45th Pa. Vet. Vol.; Maj. G. W. Merrick, 6th Pa. Reserves; Capt. A. B. Horton, 149th Pa. Vol.; Gen. R. C. Cox, 207th Pa. Vol.; Wm. Hoagland, 7th Pa. Cavalry, and D. H. Belcher, 45th Pa. Vol.

The above call is issued in pursuance of a resolution adopted at a meeting of the soldiers of the 45th Pa. Vet. Vols., held in January last, when the above name persons were appointed a committee to take preliminary action by calling such convention.

D. H. Belcher, Sec.

Wellsboro, April 18.

—Mr. Proctor, the gentleman who has been visiting in this place several weeks, engaged in introducing Appleton's Cyclopædia, is, weare pleased to learn, an active temperance worker. We notice by the Pittsburgh Commercial that while in that city on Saturday last, where he had gone to spend the Sabbath with his family, he conducted a large and enthusiastic temperance meeting in the Grant Street Holly Tree Inn. We hope he may meet with as substantial results in battling against old King Alcohol as have attended his efforts in canvassing in this place for the great work he represents, which would not, by any means, be trifling.

—Here is a good recipe for killing a town: "Underrate every present and prospective enterprise; speak ill of the churches and schools; tell everybody the hotels are bad; enlarge the vices of the people; withhold patronage from your merchants and tradesmen, and buy your goods and groceries at some other place; never subscribe for your local paper; and if you are in business refuse to advertise.

—Samuel Powell, colored, of this place, was before Justice Rankin, on Thursday night, to answer the charge of larceny made against him by D. M. Wagner, by whom he was employed, and who claims that Powell purloined a pair of trousers from his store. The evidence given in at the hearing was not very strong, but the defendant was bound over in the sum of $200 bail.

—The street lamp on the corner of Allegheny and Linn streets was left burning all night Thursday to warn pedestrians and teamsters against running into the trenches that have been dug in that vicinity to repair the water pipe. This is a new departure. The borough doesn't generally interest itself in the welfare of pedestrians in this particular.

Knights Templar Installation.

The installation of officers of Constans Commandery, No. 33, K. T., took place Tuesday night at the asylum in the Arcade. In past years only members of the lodge have been in attendance at these exercises, but on this occasion some new features, of a social nature, were added, and a limited number of outsiders, including representatives of the press, invited to be present as the guests of the commandery, nearly all of whom responded, and were not sorry that they did so, as the affair proved a very pleasant and entertaining one. The installation ceremonies were beautiful and impressive, and made all the more interesting by the rendition of several pleasing selections by the excellent choir in attendance. A prominent feature of the evening was an appropriate address delivered by Rev. John Hewitt, concerning the origin of this ancient order, and the significance of its continuance, which was listened to intently throughout.

Past Commander, F. P. Green, was the installing officer, and performed his duties in an efficient manner. The following officers were installed:

Eminent Commander—Jackson L. Spangler.
Generalissimo—Daniel H. Hastings.
Captain General—Elias W. Harris.
Treasurer—John P. Harris.
Recorder—George B. Weaver.
Prelate—Rev. John Hewitt.
Senior Warden—W. F. Reber.
Junior Warden—J. Calvin Harper.
Standard Bearer—Robert Hepburn.
Sword Bearer—John H. Sands.
Warder—J. Irvin Hagerman.

Meeting of Agricultural Society.

The Centre County Agricultural Society held a business meeting in the Court House Monday night. In the absence of the president of the society Mr. Austin Curtin was called upon to preside over the meeting. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. A. A. Dale tendered his resignation as secretary, and S. D. Ray was elected to fill the vacancy. Prof. Hamilton, representative of the State Board of Agriculture, submitted a brief report. James H. Weaver of Milesburg, John Rishel of Potter, and W. A. Woodward of Howard, were appointed a committee to represent the society at the State College.

At the conclusion of the business before the society Mr. Whiteman H Jordan, professor of Agriculture at State College, who was present, was invited to deliver his lecture on "Barrenness." His lecture was very interesting and instructive, and delivered in such a manner that none who were present could fail to understand. At the finish the Professor requested the audience to ask him any question they saw fit in regard to his lecture, and a great many farmers availed themselves of the opportunity offered.

A Crash at the Round House.

An accident of a somewhat unusual nature occurred at the round house Monday. A loaded coal car was backed down the track by an engine, to be run into the house, and when near the entrance the latter was detached and the matter of stopping the car at its proper place left with the brakeman. The accident which followed would no doubt have been avoided had the brake been in good working order. But it wasn't and as the brakeman was unable to check its speed, the car dashed into the side of the building with a loud crash. A portion of brickwork was carried away, and one window shattered to pieces. The brakeman jumped off and was not injured.

—The farmer, with his wife and daughters and sons, and his cousins and his sisters and his aunts, and his wife's relations, and possibly his mother-in-law, with a store box full of provisions, will be in town to-day to witness the "all-firedest panoramical dazzlelinctum street pagent ever seen this side of Cape Cod." No extra charge for sidewalk room, but spectators will have to run their own risk of being kicked to death by the eleven-footed heel-slinger, or spit upon by excited tobacco mulchers in third-story windows.

—A country couple came to town one day last week from over in the valley and were united in marriage by a Justice of the Peace. In less than ten minutes after the knot was tied they became involved in a sad jangle as to where they should go on their wedding trip. She was in favor of going to New York, while he was determined to see Washington. Finally they compromised the matter by going up to Julian and spending the night with his uncle.

—Who is likely to succeed Mr. Shortlidge as president of the State College is one of the things "what no fellow can find out." It is said, however, that Vice-President McKee would like to occupy the executive chair, and that a similar feeling is entertained by Treasurer Hamilton and Prof. C. Alfred Smith.

What Tenants May Remove.

The following, from the Philadelphia Press, deals with an important subject, to tenants, and may be read with profit:

"Tenants of an improving disposition are often deterred from making their homes as comfortable as they could desire, and are able to make them, for fear of benefiting their landlords or successors more than themselves. Painting, papering and repairing of the house and improvement of the grounds are obviously of a permanent nature and cannot benefit any one but the occupant of the premises. Should the tenant see fit to incur expense for these things, he can claim no recompense, if, at the expiration of his lease, he is unwilling or unable to renew it. There are, however, many improvements that formerly would have been held to inure to the benefit of the landlord, but which more modern decisions permit the tenant to take up and carry away with his other household goods.

"Although the law has been little changed in this respect, the views of judges have been practically reversed. The tendency of all recent decisions is to allow a tenant to remove everything removable which he adds to the tenancy, unless he himself intended it to be permanent. Houses are usually considered as realty, and everything attached, as porches, window blinds and sashes, water spouts and lightning rods, go with them. The gas pipes which convey the gas from the streets and distribute it throughout the house are in the same category, but the gas fixtures, though screwed and cemented to the gas fittings, are held to be of the same nature as the old fashioned candlesticks, and, therefore, personal property. This has long been held to be the law as regards tenants. They may put what gas fixtures they please in a house, and take them away again with their kerosene lamps and other illuminating apparatus. Recently Judge Thayer decided that this was good law for the landlord as well as for the tenant, and that therefore the gas fixtures do not necessarily pass with the sale of the house, nor are they covered by a mortgage on the realty."

—We hear that the Y. M. C. Association, of this place, contemplate erecting a building for their own special use. If such is the purpose of the organization we hope their efforts will be crowned with success. The State Association would probably contribute to such an enterprise.

—There is a very large number of boardwalks in town, on principal streets, badly in need of repairs. This is the season of the year for improving, and property owners whose sidewalks are in a dilapidated condition had better be giving them attention.

—All the great men of the country seem to be experiencing a spell of sickness just now. There's Blaine down with rheumatism, Gov. Hoyt is confined to his house, Sam Tilden is bilious, and we ain't more'n half fit to be about ourself.

—Telephonic communication will likely be established between this place and Snow Shoe in the near future. There is also some talk of putting up a commercial wire from this place to Tyrone.

—Armstrong county has a woman who has made up her mind to enter politics. Her name is Miss Buckley, and she announces herself as a candidate for Recorder on the Republican ticket.

—The temperance people in town seem to be very active just now, and petitions remonstrating against the sale of liquor have been circulated in every quarter during the past fortnight.

—Mrs. John P. Harper, of Beech Creek, died Monday morning. She was the sister of Col. James F. and George B. Weaver, and was about 66 years of age.
